I want to see you like I've never seen you before
I want to hold you like I'll never touch you again
But your face has grown familiar, your hands don't know my name
You can say that nothing's changed, but it don't feel the same

Want for loving, lost for words to say
In my dreams you're never too far away
When I turn down all the lights, close both my eyes
Think back on all the evenings with you right here by my side

But if you ain't got troubles then you ain't been living
And there ain't no blame that ain't mine alone to bear
We've been treading on thin ice and summer is moving in
So just take my hand and hold me for one last night

I want those moments to last forever
Cause I can't bring myself to get out of this bed
So I undressed you with my mind like I've done so many times
Hoping, but knowing it will never be

I ain't used to feeling so alone
Not sure of who to trust and who to blame
I got nothing left to lose, nothing left to hide
I ain't used to all the hurtin', but it hurts a little less each time

But if you ain't got troubles then you ain't been living
And there ain't no blame that ain't mine alone to bear
We've been treading on thin ice and summer is moving in
So just take my hand and hold me for one last night
